Books for the Beach
From Milwaukee Public Library Fiction Selector Jacki Potratz

Perennials by Mandy Berman. Fiction. A nostalgic summer camp tale. After years of being summer BFFs, Rachel Rivkin and Fiona Larkin reunite at Camp Marigold as counselors. For these two young women, the hot holiday season sets their coming-of-age aflame.

The Windfall by Diksha Basu. Fiction. What does it mean to be nouveau riche in modern India? This comedy of manners highlights a family dealing with the precariousness of social status, insubstantiality of pride, and the natural determination we have to build and share a home.

Secrets in Summer by Nancy Thayer. Fiction. Darcy spends her days at the library and her nights stargazing and contemplating a new relationship. When she is drawn into the summertime dramas of three families, including those of her recently married ex, Darcy is compelled to consider what she truly wants.

Chemistry by Weike Wang. Fiction. Losing her love for her major when her graduate studies become subject to research failures, a university chemistry student in Boston contemplates a marriage proposal from a more successful fellow scientist, while she pursues an entirely different kind of chemistry.

The Simplicity of Cider by Amy E. Reichert. Fiction. Sanna Lund wants to live a simple life working on her family’s apple orchard in Wisconsin, but her life becomes more complicated after single dad Isaac Banks and his young son come to work for her and she discovers that her beloved orchard is being vandalized.

Our Little Racket by Angelica Baker. Fiction. Full of wealth, envy, and secrets, this is the story of five women whose lives are dramatically changed by the downfall of a financial titan. During the 2008 financial crisis, an ousted CEO causes these women to negotiate power on their own terms and ask themselves what – if anything – is worth saving.

The Identicals by Elin Hilderbrand. Fiction. Identical twin sisters Harper and Tabitha Frost have spent a decade living on islands only eleven miles apart. They decide to switch islands and lives for an unforgettable summer that will change them forever. Before the last beach picnic of the season there will be new loves, and the most talked-about summer Martha’s Vineyard and Nantucket have experienced in ages.

I Need a Lifeguard Everywhere but the Pool by Lisa Scottoline and Francesca Serritella. 818.602 S4311. This lighthearted collection of stories by the award-winning mother-and-daughter team features warm and witty memoir tales. Join Lisa and Francesca as they regret drunk-shopping online, try smell-dating, and explore the freedom of a hiatus from men - a Guyatus.

Driving Miss Norma by Tim Bauerschmidt. 92 B344B. This is the heartwarming story of a 90-year-old woman who was brave enough to say ‘no’ to medical treatment for cancer, and the family brave enough to take her on the road for the adventure of a lifetime. Laugh and cry with Tim, Ramie, Miss Norma and Ringo (the family dog) on their trip around the country.

Watch Me Disappear by Janelle Brown. Mystery. This page-turning thriller tells the story of a mother with a troubled past who vanishes while hiking, leaving her family to piece together her secrets. When only a hiking boot is found, they mourn her and look forward to closure… but is she really gone?

You Don’t Look Your Age…and Other Fairy Tales by Sheila Nevins. 927.973 N5285. An astonishingly frank, funny book for anyone who wishes they had someone who would say to them, “This happened to me, learn from my mistakes and my successes. Because you don’t get smarter as you get older, you get braver.” Nevins is the best friend you never knew you had – the one person who always tells it like it is.

How to Survive a Summer by Nick White. Fiction. A Midwestern graduate student finds himself reliving a horrible experience he had at a camp that tried to ‘cure’ teenage boys of their homosexuality when he discovers the campground, now abandoned, is being used in an upcoming horror movie.

The Fact of a Body by Alexandria Marzano-Lesnevich. 364.1523 M393. An intimate memoir, this is also a compelling and page-turning true crime tale that legal thriller fans will love. If that isn’t enough, it is also beautifully written. A summer job at a Louisiana law firm and the case of a convicted murderer changed Marzano-Lesnevich’s views about the death penalty and forced her to confront secrets within her own family.

This Is Just My Face by Gabourey Sidibe. 927.973 S568A. Sidibe, who grew up in New York City with a stern Senegalese father, has struggled with body image. She shares details about her childhood with a polygamous father and her gifted mother who supported them by singing in the subway. This girl’s got something to say and it will make you laugh out loud!

The Sunshine Sisters by Jane Green. Fiction. Nell, Meredith and Lizzy have never been close as sisters go, but their mother’s illness draws them together. When they confront all the old jealousies and fears that have threatened to tear them apart, will blood be thicker than water after all?

God and Starbucks by Vin Baker. 796.323092 B168. Vin Baker spent thirteen years in the NBA. A graduate of the University of Hartford, he won a gold medal playing for the U.S. Olympic team in 2000 and was selected by the Milwaukee Bucks in the 1993 NBA Draft. At the same time, he harbored a dark secret: a dependency on drugs and alcohol. He hit rock bottom, and then with humility and grace, transformed himself.

The Leavers by Lisa Ko. Fiction. When his undocumented immigrant mother disappears, eleven-year-old Deming Guo is adopted by a family that attempts to make him over as an American teen, while he struggles to reconcile his new life with memories of the family he left behind.

My Favorite Thing Is Monsters by Emil Ferris. 741.5973 F394 BK1. Set against the tumultuous political backdrop of late ’60s Chicago, this fictional graphic diary of 10-year-old Karen Reyes is filled with B-movie horror and pulp monster magazine iconography. Reyes tries to solve the murder of her upstairs neighbor, a holocaust survivor, while the interconnected stories of those around her unfold.

With your generous support, 70,000 Milwaukee Public School students were given Milwaukee Public Library cards through LibraryNow, a new collaboration which empowers students and families in and outside of the classroom. Mayor Tom Barrett visited with families at MPL’s Martin Luther King Branch.
Your gift helped the library provide free public access to outstanding business databases for marketing and sales research, financial management, credit counseling, bankruptcy, identity theft and investment research. These free digital resources and more can be found on mpl.org.
You’ve helped MPL create and develop opportunities for teens to get career and college ready, enhance STEM skills and explore their creativity with special library maker spaces. MPL’s soon-to-open Mitchell Street Branch will include a whole level for a maker’s space dedicated to invention and the entrepreneurial spirit.

The Bookshelf

Thoreau’s Animals by Henry David Thoreau; edited by Geoff Wisner, illustrated by Debby Cotter Kaspari. 590.9744 T488.

Published in time for the 200th anniversary of Thoreau’s birth (July 12, 1817), this collection of excerpts from his journals focuses on animals, wild and domestic, showcasing his skills as a natural historian. Arranged by time of year rather than in a strict chronology, it allows the reader to note the richness found in the repeated cycle of the seasons.

A Most Improbable Journey: A Big History of Our Planet and Ourselves by Walter Alvarez. 550 A473.

Alvarez, a geologist best known for his theory that a meteorite impact caused the mass extinction at the end of the Cretaceous Period, looks at human life from a ‘big history’ point of view. He takes into account key events of Earth’s prehistory, from the big bang to continental drift, and their effect on how life, intelligence, and civilization developed.

The Idiot by Elif Batuman. Fiction.

Turkish-American student Selin goes to Harvard in her freshman year and falls in love with a slightly older, inscrutable Hungarian mathematician. Batuman so expertly places you in the shoes of her laconic protagonist that you can’t help but be swept up in the whirlwind of garbled communication that accompanies this tale of first love.

Storm in a Teacup: The Physics of Everyday Life by Helen Czerski. 530 C998.

Czerski’s aim is to explain the universe through everyday objects, from microwave ovens to carbonated soda, bringing a fresh and engaging perspective to the study of science that’s bound to inspire further research. You’ll never look at your refrigerator magnets the same once you’ve read about how they compare to a magnetic resonance imaging machine.

The Beginner’s Guide to Starting a Garden: 326 Fast, Easy, Affordable Ways to Transform Your Yard One Project at a Time by Sally Roth. 635 R843B.

Not just for beginners, this guide is filled with ideas on how to expand or change-up existing garden space, no matter the size. Including money-saving tips and advice on more than just plant selection, these instructions will help you amp up the curb appeal and create a beautiful space.

A Very Expensive Poison: The Assassination of Alexander Litvinenko and Putin’s War with the West by Luke Harding. 327.1247 H263V.

A story that would be wholly unbelievable if it didn’t actually happen: two Russians covertly smuggled an incredibly lethal poison into the UK in order to assassinate a dissident, only to have their deed discovered after the fact. Thorough reporting and gripping storytelling combine to bring this remarkable story off the page in an era where Russia’s influence on the world stage continues to grow.

All Our Wrong Todays by Elan Mastai. Science Fiction.

Tom lives in a technological utopia with flying cars, moon bases and a general sense of ennui. He also lives in 2016, in an alternate world from the one we occupy. But when a time-travel mistake strands Tom in our reality, he discovers a chaotic dystopia — and maybe the place he’s meant to be.

Sustainability Made Simple: Small Changes for Big Impact by Rosaly Byrd and Lauren DeMates. 338.927 B995.

Making an effort to help the environment and create a greener future isn’t complicated. Turning off the lights, filling the trash bag completely, or using stairs instead of the elevator are easy and simple things you can do to foster sustainability.
